Salute To Hi-Y And Tri-Hi-Y

SPANGLING the front pages of newspapers across the nation in recent months have been headlines relating to the increase in teen-age marriages, to crimes and traffic violations involving teen agers, and in drinking and other delinquent acts of high school and college age. In the face of these alarming facts, however, stands a organization dedicated to the spiritual, intellectual, social, and physical improvement of youth, regardless of age, creed, or color. This beacon light illuminating the darkness is the Y. M. C. A.

The Y. M. C. A.'s arm of service in the local high schools is the Tri-Hi-Y and Hi-Y organizations. These clubs have as their aim the extension of high standards of Christian character throughout the local school and community. In the accomplishment of this, school service projects and community service projects are engaged in each month, alcohol education and Christian boy-girl relationships are emphasized, and programs relating to the spiritual, social, mental, and physical development of the students are planned and executed.

The TIMES VIRGINIAN proudly salutes the young men and women of Appomattox High School and Carver-Price High School who are members of their respective Tri-Hi-Y and Hi-Y organizations, as well as all the youth of our nation who are members of the Tri-Hi-Y or the Hi-Y and pledges its wholehearted support of their programs and ideals.

Surprise

Every child at the Spout Spring Elementary School who was seen in one of the three photos taken of the annual Book Week program, received a print of that picture as a Christmas present according to one of the mothers.

The pictures were taken by the TIMES VIRGINIAN staff, and one of the three poses appeared in the Dec. 6 issue. Each of the teachers at the Spout Spring school had prints ordered as gifts for the children.

Making Enemies

Lesson for January 20, 1963

How can goodness be hated? How can God make enemies? God is perfect goodness, God is Love, and still He has enemies. It is not as if God were shut off in some inaccessible heaven, so that we could not see his goodness. If God came to this small earth in a form we could understand, He would still make enemies. Why that is we do not know. But God did come to this earth in a form we can understand. He came as one of ourselves. It is true, God is everywhere, and has always been everywhere. Indeed you might well say that God created everywhere. But Jesus of Nazareth for the first time showed what God-as-man is like . . . and still made enemies.

Reading Minds

It is not quite precisely the truth to say that Jesus "made" enemies. That sounds as if He deliberately stirred men against Him. That was not the story. He made enemies in the same sense that on account of things He said or did, men were thoughtfully angry with Him, or much so that in time they reached the murderous state. It is not in our time to look into this. How was it that the Son of God, the one human being who perfectly mirrored the Eternal Love—how was it that, of all people, He made enemies?

Mark's Gospel tells a group of short stories all on the same theme, at this point. One incident after another brings out the fact that Jesus was up against a dead wall of resistance — and we can see why. Five among the reasons was that He dared to say what only God would have a right to say. He was bold enough to tell a young man, lying paralyzed on a mattress, "Your sins are forgiven." To be able to say that to any one implies two other things. The one is that it is true, that one is to be able to read another man's mind . . . and he must be able to read the mind of God. He must know the man wants to be forgiven, he must know that God is ready to forgive, and does forgive. Now you might think that everybody around would rejoice that a man's sins had been forgiven. But instead the people who heard Jesus say this were convinced that Jesus was a blasphemer. He was "playing God." You see they assumed to begin with that He was lying. But what if He told the truth? That they refused to believe.

Jesus Knew What God Meant

Many times Jesus made enemies by what He did on the Sabbath, the seventh day of the week, the day sacred to God. The Pharisees had it all figured out that on the Sabbath day it was hardly right to do anything at all but go to the synagogue and back. But Jesus' disciples were on a walk and hungry on Sabbath day, and did what any one might have done, picked a few heads of wheat and chewed them up. They must have been really hungry to do that. The watching Pharisees, who seem to have been always around, like gnats, pounced on this harmless act. They blamed Jesus for breaking the Sabbath. It never occurred to them that if it is not wrong to give food to the hungry it is not wrong for the hungry to do whatever it takes to satisfy their hunger.

How Jesus Met His Enemies

So it went. Jesus' enemies were always belittling. They always put out the worst possible explanation of all He did. They assumed in advance that He was a bad man. They were not prepared to believe anything good of him. Such men with such an attitude make mean enemies. There is hardly any hope of winning them over. The better Jesus was, the worse they became. The kinder He was, the more bitter they were. These stories suggest, to us some simple plain truths about enemies. One is: There is no escaping them. If Jesus the Son of God made enemies, his followers may expect the same of, of course, they are as active in doing good as He was. The people who are "good, but good for nothing," have no enemies—and no friends either. You can't neither love nor hate a vegetable. But if you go about doing good, strange to say you won't have everyone with you. But you can do with your enemies what Jesus did with His—go right on doing good as long as you live.

Pastor Says

How much better is man than a sheep? In a quarrel keeping the Sabbath Day with the regimented religious leaders of His day, Jesus asked, "How much more value is a man than a sheep?" Matt. 12:12. This question was framed with the expectation of an affirmative answer. But, it was negative.

Of the more than 4000 rules which had developed among the religious leaders of Jesus' day most of them defended a system at the expense of an individual. Jesus said, "Ye hallowed, worshiped men" as they were called, were passing through the grain fields on Sunday. They were hungry, and plucked some grain, winnowed it, and ate it. "you can't do that", the religionists said. That's work. That's against the Law. How could we can we get? Our society is so constructed that we fine a person $500.00 for killing a deer out of season, but that same society permits a man to kill another and get "good free," because of technical points of the law.

We are as Luke in Acts. 2:40 states an "untoward" (turned around) generation. Bodies of dead people will be picked up in the back alleys of Hong Kong, Tokyo, Calcutta, and other cities from starvation, while we here in God Blessed America burn up the grain storage business to the time of 7 Billion dollars annually to keep from getting better in humanities than sheep? We in America pride ourselves in our Democratic Republic — rightly so. But there is a sobering fact we must face, that is Democracy without spiritual faith fails as a political force. When man is relegated to the place or to an idol/object he is as is perfectly demonstrated in the Russian type of communism and then the idea becomes invalid.

God created man and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life" and he became a living soul, a vibrant being. Thus, in my book, the Sabbath, and all other rules of life, are made for man — he is better than a sheep

Matthew illustrates this tragic truth of materialism in one of his stories. It seems that Jesus and a man had cast demons from two men who were a menance to society. But those demons requested some body to occupy and wished to be placed in the swine which were nearby. The request was granted, and the swine ran down the hillside into the lake and were drowned. The owners were requests to Jesus, in rather defeinte terms, to leave their coasts. You have destroyed our business interests and you have no right to live in our community.

Yes, we are in the Liquor business, and have been for many years no. We sell it to a person. We dare him to get drunk, and if he does we punish him rightly so. Then we have to feed his children, help the widow. We tax the very stuff that brought Thus we raise taxes to get funds. We tax the very stuff that brought about the problems in the first place — how turned around can we get? This reminds me of the famous joke about the man spelling confused with a K. When goaded for doing so he replied, "you don't know how confused I am." Let's believe and live out our faith, that man is better than a sheep. Thanks for your comments and suggestions about articles—they are welcomed.

Dear Mr. Editor:

Your story on, and photo of Hacker Johnston, of Route 4, Appomattox, made me suddenly realize that I was delinquent in my subscription to TIMES-VIRGINIAN. Enclosed herewith is my check in the amount sufficient to bring it to my home for another year.

You may wonder why your valued patronation comes up here in Yankeeland. The reason goes back to 1903, really. That year saw what was to be the first of a half - dozen trips to your part of Virginia; trips that took me to the old Stonewall Milling Co. of which Mr. Martin was, and is the proprietor. It was an interest in antique - type guns that got us acquainted. A strong friendship has grown between us, and which nothing short of death will dissolve.

Mr. Martin has made me quite a number of guns, and which are a valued part of my fine collection. I have learned considerable of his profession from him, and his generosity of skill to which I have attained, I gladly solely to him.

To those fine people, Hacker and Maude Martin, and on many times, acquainted with some of the subscribers of Oakville, and the Stonewall Community, and I can truthfully say that I've yet to meet a Virginian that I disliked.

Brother Martin and myself, long ago traveled the same road to the East, in search of Light. In all of my sojournings, I've found only two Freemasons in the United States, Andrew Jackson, and Andrew Johnson were members of No. 116, Greeneville, Tenn.. Jackson was a charter member. So Brother Martin was in the finest of company, I'd say.

I always read with keen interest, anything you publish pertaining to The War Between the States. I'm half Rebel, anyway. My Great - great Uncle Samuel Baker just about shot Bell Boyd, Confederate Spy. She is his niece by marriage. And Uncle Samuel was in Jeb Stuart's the Welsh House of PANNILL. There's a Pannill in my ancestry, sure enough. You could fill TIMES - VIRGINIAN with Lost Cause stories, and I'd be happy. The more, the better.

Cordially
R. E. Baker

IN MEMORIAM

IN MEMORIAM: In loving memory of my husband and father, Mr. W. P. Grishaw, who died 11th day of January 1962.

January brings sad memories of a loved one gone to rest;
You will never be forgotten,
By the one who loved you best.
The beautiful things you did for me,
Live in my heart each day,
And keep you ever near and dear to me,
Though you have passed away.
A precous one from me is gone,
A voice I love is still.
A place is vacant in my home,
Which never, can be filled.
Sadly missed by: Wife and Children. 1-17-1c

Cold; Cuba; Affect Visitor Count At Surrender Grounds

The Cuban crisis and cold weather were two reasons given for a drop in tourists to the near-by Surrender Grounds during 1962, according to a report Friday by Thomas F. Norris, superintendent.

A total of 152,176 persons visited the park area during 1962. This was a drop of 4,187 over 1961's total of 156,363.

Norris said that they had every reason to expect a record number of tourists until the Oct-Nov-Cuban crisis and December's cold weather. Total visitor count, up until those months, showed an increase over Marvitin was. Norris said that visitors have increased 25 to 26 per cent each year.
